The Sand Worm

The Hernandez family was enjoying a day at the beach. It was almost time to go home. The sun was setting, and its light made the ocean shine. Anna’s brother, George, showed her the shells he had found. He looked at her sand sculpture.

“Wow!” he said, “That looks just like a crocodile!”

“That’s right,” Anna said, grinning. “I wanted to make a scary sand crocodile going into the ocean.”

As the children talked, the waves came closer and closer to the sand crocodile.

“Oh, no!” said Anna.

Crash! Swish! A wave washed away the crocodile’s long mouth. Crash! Swish! Another wave washed away the crocodile’s front legs. Soon only its tail was left.

“I’m so sorry,” said George.

“It’s okay,” said Anna, laughing. “Now it looks like a funny worm going into the ocean!”

   G. Put your toys away.
   H. I will help you.
Once upon a time there was a greedy dog. Even though he had plenty of food and toys, he always desired more. One afternoon he observed a little puppy chewing on a huge bone.

“Give me that bone,” the greedy dog growled. The frightened puppy dropped the bone and scurried away. The greedy dog scooped up the bone and marched on his way.

As the greedy dog crossed a bridge over a creek, he glanced over the edge of the bridge and noticed another dog staring up at him from the water. That dog also had a huge bone in his mouth. The greedy dog decided he wanted that bone, too.

He bared his teeth and let out a fierce growl. Much to his disbelief, the dog in the water growled back. The greedy dog snapped at the bone in the other dog’s mouth. Plop! The bone in the greedy dog’s mouth fell into the water, and the other dog vanished.

“That dog has stolen my bone!” thought the greedy dog, “I must find him!”

Of course, he never did.
